The California State Board of Health has decided that heart failure will not be accepted as a cause of death hereafter in a physician's certificate.

As matters now stand, 1,250,000 persons in this country possess $46,500,000,000 of the nation's wealth, while 61,500,000 own the magnificent sum of $15,500,000,000.

The investments of the Rothschilds in American securities are estimated to amount to $50,000,000. During the long career of the house it has raised $3,000,000,000 for European governments.

California's gold product has so overshadowed all other mineral productions in that State that it is rather surprising to learn that since 1873 the yield of quicksilver has reached a total value of $70,500,000.

Brazil seems, for the time, to have disappointed its enemies and settled down to a respectable and quiet existence, notes the San Francisco Chronicle. It now has a regular constitution and president and is a praiseworthy example of good behavior. How long this will last is a question, but it is a good thing while it does last.

The United British Women's Emigration Association keeps only such women and girls to emigrate as are of good character and capacity. During the past year they have sent 1200 women besides men and families, and children for adoption, out of Britain. Most of these have gone to British North America.

How carelessly many people read a newspaper and from what a poor source popular rumors spread is shown by the report circulated in New York a short time ago that President Harrison was dead. It all grew out of the fact that the New York Tribune, in celebrating its fiftieth birthday, republished a fac simile of its first issue, which happened to contain the announcement of the death of President William Henry Harrison. Although this feature was in a supplement, some one read it as news and spread the report.

The large emigration from Russia to the United States has greatly enlarged the volume of correspondence between the two countries, although the letter mail has increased far more than the newspaper mail. There is an excellent reason for this, maintains the San Francisco Chronicle. There would not be much use in paying postage on a newspaper in the knowledge that when it should have reached Russia the polyglot censor would be likely to subject all of it except the name and date to a coat of anti-corrosive paint, skillfully applied with a blacking-brush.

Here is a Chinese opinion of the United States taken from the Pekin Gazette: "It is impossible to understand these barbarous people. One thing is certain; if they do a thing they do it with all their might. Thirty years ago they had a big civil war. The whole country was turned into military camps and battlefields, and everybody, even to the women folk, were engaged in the war in one way or another, and one army numbered 2,000,000 men. And now there are young men, old enough to vote, who had never seen a company of soldiers in their life. In fact, these people seem to think another war will never break out, especially in their part of the world. A person can travel clear across the American continent without seeing a soldier, and follow the main lines of travel, too. In fact, at the present time, there is only about one soldier for every 2000 persons, while Russia has one soldier to every 90."

The United States is not particularly rich in deposits of precious stones, concludes the Boston Transcript. The Census Bureau finds that the total value of precious stones and ornamental stones, including those that were procured for cabinets, found in the United States in 1880 was but $188,807. On the other hand the value of diamonds and other precious stones, unset, imported into the United States in 1889 was $1,705,809. If gems are to be deemed the evidence of luxury, it is making rapid progress in the United States. The value of the total importations from 1870 to 1879 inclusive was $25,698,203, and from 1880 to 1889 inclusive we imported $87,198,144 worth, enough to give every man, woman and child in the United States a dollar gem, and leave a few cents over for Alaska diamonds. The importation of precious stones was inconsiderable before the war as compared with the magnitude the business has obtained today. As gems are among the most indestructible things into which money can be transmuted, the increase of the wealth of the country by these importations is very nearly permanent. There are gems enough in the United States to make many of the crown jewels of the Old World pale their ineffectual fires.

To Sleep.

O winged sleep, dear son of drowsy night
And holy silence, born upon a hill
And cradled in the crimson poppies till
Thy infant heart was full of all delight!
O sleep, thou languid chaser of the light,
Come to me now on pinions broad and still
And crown my brow with kisses sweet, and thrill
My restless brain with shadows exquisite,
Breathe on mine eyes with influences kind,
Shielding my head upon your balmy breast,
Till I shall lie, like ardent Cupid, blind
And sunk into an ecstacy of rest,
Then let draw near me, borne upon the wind,
Sweet visions of true love and all things blest.

The Hero of the Stampede.

BY THOMAS P. MONTFORT.

In the year 18— I was employed as a herder at Merrill's ranch, out in Western Kansas. Ours was one of the most extensive ranches in the State, and there was quite a little army of men and boys in connection with it. One of the duties with which we were charged was that of keeping the range, which was government land, free of settlers.

"When you see a covered wagon," said our manager, "keep your eyes on it, and take care that it don't stop on our grazing lands."

"But suppose," questioned one, "the owner of a wagon should refuse to move on. Then what are we to do?"

"I guess there's enough of us here," replied the manager, "to see that he does move. If any man should be foolhardy enough to squat here after being notified not to do so, it will be our business to rout him out. We'll kill his horses, burn his wagon, and, if he's very obstreperous, we'll hang him a little. Our instructions from Mr. Merrill are to keep this range clear of settlers, and we've got to do it or else lose our jobs."

I did not look with favor on this arrangement, and neither did the majority of the herders. Our sympathies were with the poor home-seekers, and we knew that both the law and justice gave them the right to own the land of which our range was composed. However, we said nothing at the time, but continued about our duties.

During the next month several wagons drove across our range, but none of them halted within our limits Then one day, late in the afternoon, there came an old canvas-covered wagon, dilapidated to the last degree, drawn by a span of poor, bony horses that could scarcely more than creep. I saw the poor outfit crawling along the edge of the timber and I watched it until I saw it halt at a point less than a fourth of a mile from the ranch. I saw a man come out of the wagon, and after looking about for a minute or so, proceed to unhitch his team and turn them out to graze. I felt it my duty to warn him to move on, so I rode down to the wagon for that purpose. The man was a tall, thin, sickly-looking person whose surroundings proclaimed him a victim of extreme poverty. I was touched by his appearance, and as gently as I could, I informed him of the necessity of immediately vacating the spot. As I spoke his pale, sharp features lighted up with the fire of indignation, and in reply he said:

"I've made my last move, unless I'm driven by force. I've been run about from place to place by the cattlemen till I've got nothing left, and I'm tired of it. This land is open for settlement and I have a right to a claim here, and I propose to have it."

"But you can't hold it," I reasoned. "They'll burn your wagon and kill your horses."

"Just let them try it," he replied, laying his hand on a pistol which hung at his side. "I've got this left, and I'm desperate enough to use it. Some of them wouldn't burn any more wagons."

I reasoned with the man as best I could, but he refused to move on, and at last I turned away from him hoping his presence might not be noticed that evening by any of our people, and that by the following morning he might see the wisdom of moving on.

I had only gone a short distance when I met a little boy running across the prairie, and as he stopped to admire my gaudy "cowboy" attire and trappings, I spoke to him and asked his name.

"I'm Johnnie Merrill," he answered. "Me'n my pa just came down here today, an' my pa he's gone to look at the cattle an' I'm goin' down there to that wagon. My pa he owns this ranch, you know, an' he let me come down here with him this time."

"I had not gone far, after leaving the boy, when I met a man cantering along on horseback, and as he was a stranger, and well dressed, I rightly judged that he was Mr. Merrill. Just as we met he happened to notice the old wagon, and reining in his horse, he said:

"What is that over there by the timber?"

"A home-seeker," I replied.

"Oh, a squatter, eh? Well, go over and tell him to move on."

"I've already warned him," I answered.

"Is he going away, then?"

"I don't know. He is very poor, and is very sick, but I think he'll go tomorrow."

Mr. Merrill saw at once that I was attempting to screen the man, and with a flash of anger he said:

"You go down and tell the boys that I said that squatter must not be there at sundown. Do you understand me?"

"I do," said I, as I turned away.

I rode leisurely down in the direction of the herd and I found the boys working the cattle back toward the ranch.

"There's goin' to be a storm," old Ike Sampson announced as I rode up. "These blamed cattle air the most restless an' oneasy critters I ever see, an' that's a shore sign somethin' is brewin' in the air. For a cent the whole pack of 'em 'ud go on a stampede."

I informed old Ike, who was the leader among the "boys," of what Merrill had said, and the whole force gathered around to listen. I also told of my interview with the squatter. Old Ike scratched his head for a moment, then slowly said:

"Wal, here's a nice mess, shore. I'm agin runnin' them settlers off in any sech way, but I reckon we'll haft to do it. Orders is orders, an' we've got to obey or else hunt another job."

"That's a fact," replied Jabe Morgan. "The feller has got to go, or else we've got to go."

"Yep," agreed Ike. "That's the size an' shape of it. But, by gum, it mayn't be no easy matter to trot that chap off. He 'pears sorter game, an' like enough he'll pump some of us full of lead."

The "boys" were still discussing the matter, when before we were hardly aware of it the whole herd broke into a stampede and went crashing away, hugging close to the timber and making the very earth tremble beneath their feet. Directly toward the squatter's wagon they went, and it was a sight to sicken one when he looked upon that vast sea of cattle and realized how irresistible was the mad rush, and how defenseless was anyone who stood in the way. I knew that the old wagon and its contents would be literally blotted out of existence, and I knew no means of escape for the poor squatter.

Merrill saw the stampede and came riding down towards us, but all at once he stopped as if rooted to the ground. He was near me, and I saw a deathly whiteness come to his face while he stared fixedly in the direction of the wagon. I looked, too, and at a glance I comprehended it all. Merrill's little boy had evidently started away from the wagon, and having gone a dozen yards or so, had stopped directly in the track of the cattle. He stood gazing at the advancing herd, making no effort to escape, and it seemed inevitable that he must be trampled to death in another minute.

To attempt the child's rescue was useless, for we were near a half mile away from him while the cattle were but a few yards, and long before we could have reached him the mad herd would have swept by.

"My God, men," Merrill cried, "can't something be done to save my child? It's awful, awful!"

On and on swept the herd. Less than twenty steps lay between the child and destruction. We held our breath and waited in terrible suspense. Merrill covered his eyes and groaned in the deepest anguish. A moment passed. Then a murmur of applause ran throughout our circle—a murmur scarcely more than a whisper. Another moment of suspense, then a shout, long, loud, and hearty. The child was safe.

The squatter had come around the wagon, and at the risk of his own life had saved the child. He had rushed forward and snatched the boy from under the feet of the cattle, and running back a few steps had taken shelter behind a tree, pushing the boy up among the boughs beyond danger.

Another minute and the herd had passed, and we were on the spot. The child was unhurt, but the squatter was less fortunate. He was bruised and torn by the horns and hoofs of the cattle that passed near him. The tree was small and afforded him but partial protection, and once or twice he was knocked down. His injuries, however, were not serious, as we were all glad to know, and none of us more glad than Merrill.

When the squatter's eyes wandered to the spot where his wagon had been, and he saw the complete wreck of all his possessions, he groaned and a dimness came to his eyes.

"It's all right, my friend," said Merrill, laying his hand gently on the man's shoulder; "you shall lose nothing. You shall have a claim here and I will make up to you ten times over all you have lost. You shall make the ranch your home."

Merrill kept his promises, and after the squatter had selected a claim he helped him to build a house and furnish it, and besides loaned him money to send back east to pay passage for his wife and children.

The employes of the ranch made up a purse to present the squatter, and when the donations were all in it was found that we had the neat little sum of $130. "Enough," as Ike said, "to sorter bridge over in case o' sickness or somethin'." Old Ike put the money in a purse, and labeled it with a card on which he had scrawled with a pencil these words:

"A present from the cowpunchers of Merrill's ranch to the man who, though a squatter, is a better man than any of us."

The purse was duly presented to the squatter, with a little presentation speech from Ike which was as unique as appropriate.

Every man on the ranch received strict orders from Merrill not to molest or interfere in any way with any homeseeker who happened to strike our part of the country, and we never did from that day.—[Detroit Free Press.

An Elephant That Could Count.

Mr. Arthur Clay sends the following instance of the sagacity of the elephant. It was told me, he says, by Mr. Quay, at the time a non-commissioned officer in the first battalion of the sixtieth rifles, but now one of her majesty's yeomen of the guard. In 1853 his regiment was marching from Peshawur to Kopulvie and was accompanied by a train of elephants. It was the duty of the mahout in charge of each elephant to prepare twenty chupatties, or flat cakes made of coarse flour, for his charge. When the twenty chupatties were ready, they were placed before the elephant, who during the process of counting never attempted to touch one of them until the full number was completed.

On the occasion related by Mr. Quay one of the elephants had seized the opportunity of his mahout's attention being distracted for a moment to steal and swallow one of the chupatties. When the mahout, having finished the preparation, began to count them out, he of course discovered the theft, and presented his charge with nineteen in place of the usual number. The elephant instantly appreciated the fact of there being one less than he had a right to expect, and refused to touch them, expressing his indignation by loud trumpetings. This brought the conductor of the elephant line (with whom Mr. Quay had been in conversation) on the scene. Having heard the explanation of the mahout the conductor decided that the mahout was in fault for not keeping a better lookout, and ordered him to provide the twentieth cake at his own cost. When this was prepared and added to the pile the elephant at once accepted and ate them.—[Spectator.

Makes Shoes Almost Indestructible.

A German chemist claims to have discovered a preparation, which, applied to the soles of boots and shoes, increases their wearing qualities from 500 to 1000 per cent. The soles are supposed to become more flexible by the process, and poorly tanned leather after being subjected to it is said to become as good as the best leather made. The sole treated with this preparation becomes waterproof. Another invention hailing from Germany is the cutting of shoe laces from scrap leather, by which even the smallest dealer is said to be enabled to apply his offal to this use. The machine is simple and inexpensive. Scraps of all shapes can be utilized, the operation consisting simply of putting the leather in position and then drawing it from the other side until the material is used up. The plate of the machine is provided with three holes so adapted as to secure perfect rounding of the laces which pass through them. The knife is adjustable and permits of cutting with equal ease from the finest to the thickest work.—[Chicago News.

Huge Chunks of Metal.

When excavations were made recently for the foundation of the twenty story Masonic temple, which is rapidly going up at the corner of State and Randolph streets, in Chicago, an eighteen-ton mass of iron, copper and other metals was discovered. A wholesale hardware store stood on the lot at the time of the great conflagration of 1871, and this mass of iron represents a portion of the stock which was melted by the intense heat and precipitated into the sub-basement. It will be exhibited at the World's Columbian Exposition by D. A. Stout.

The Copper Queen Company, at Bisbee, Ariz., will exhibit at the fair a mammoth specimen of ore from their mines. The work of chiseling the piece out has been going on for some time, and great care is being taken in its extraction. It is estimated that when ready for shipment it will weigh five tons, and will be in the shape of a brick. The specimen is from the big slope from which such beautiful specimens have been taken, and will contain about every known character of copper formations and colorings. It will, without doubt, be the most attractive specimen on exhibition.—[New Orleans New Delta.

BROADWAY.

It's Hurrying Crowds During the Business Hours.

In the series of articles on the "Great Streets of the World," printed in Scribner, R. H. Davis thus pictures Broadway during the hours of its occupancy by the New York business men:

The business man knows Broadway as a street blocked with moving drays and wagons, with pavements which move with unbroken lines of men, and that are shut in on either side by the tallest of tall buildings. It is a place where no one strolls, and where a man can as easily swing his cane as a woman could wear a train. Pedestrians do not walk steadily forward here, or in a straight line, but dodge in and out like runners on a football field They all seem to be trying to reach the bank to have a check cashed before 3 o'clock. The man who stops to speak to a friend, or to gaze into a shop window, is jostled and pushed and shouldered to one side; everyone seems to be trying to catch up to the man just in front of him; and everyone has something to do and something on his mind to think of, too, if his face tells anything.

So intent are they on their errands that they would not recognize their own wives if they passed them by. This is the spot on Broadway where the thermometer marks fever heat. It is the great fighting ground of the city, where the battle of business goes on from 8 o'clock in the morning until 3 in the afternoon, at which time the work flags a little and grows less and less hurried until 5, when the armies declare an armistice for the day and march off uptown to plan a fresh campaign for the morrow. The armies begin to arrive before eight and gather from every point of the compass. The ferry boats land them by thousands and hurry back across the river for thousands more, the elevated roads marshal them from far uptown, gathering by companies at each station, where they are unloaded and scattered over the business districts in regiments. They come over the Brooklyn bridge by tens of thousands, in one long endless procession, and cross the City Hall Park at a quick step. It is one of the most impressive sights the city has to offer.—[Scribner.

General Scott's Fiery Salad.

The late Chief Justice Chase's daughter tells this story of a visit to old General Winfield Scott at Cozzen's, West Point: "He gave us seats at his own especial table, and was very kind to us, but I was terribly afraid of him. One of his greatest pleasures at the table was to mix the most fiery of salads, which he would send by his own man (who always stood behind his master's chair) with the general's compliments, to the favored few. My gartronomic tastes were far from being developed, and the old gentleman's red pepper and mustard nearly killed me. I simply could not eat the burning stuff. Feeling the general's eye upon me, I vainly tried to swallow it, but failed ignominiously, with tears coming into my eyes with the effort. To add to my discomfort and mortification, a voice roared out in a deep tone from the general's throne, 'The little Chase does not like my salad.'"—[Boston Transcript.

The First Oklahoma Boomers.

The first organized Oklahoma raid, it is said, was made at night on April 13, 1880, by thirteen men, two of whom as guides marked the trail by placing old buffalo skulls at prominent ridges, so that the route is known to this day as the Hog's Back Trail. A location was selected on April 22. A city six miles square in area was surveyed and three houses built, and then on May 15 came Lieutenant Pardee with twelve soldiers and twelve Indian scouts from Fort Reno and arrested the whole party.—[Chicago Herald.

Hungary's Gullasch.

The paprica, a sharp pepper, found all over Hungary, is used extensively in the Magyar cookery, and the national dish, gullasch, is always seasoned with it. The latter is a stew made of equal quantities of beef, veal and lamb. The meat is cut in pieces about two inches square and put in a covered stew-pan with sufficient water to cover it and enough paprica to give it a sharp, biting taste, and allowed to cook slowly. When the meat is thoroughly done, the broth is thickened with flour and served.—[New York Journal.

The Logic of Events.

Briggs—You know that donkey story you told me? I told it to Miss Twilling the other day.

Griggs—What did she think of it?

Briggs—She said that every time after this she saw a donkey it would remind her of you.—[The Continent.

Sheep Supplant Horned Cattle.

"Did you know that sheep are rapidly taking the place of horned cattle on the Montana ranges?" asked O. W. Peabody of Great Falls, Montana, at the Hotel Metropolis. "Well, it's a fact, and sheep are now where cattle were six years ago—on the top of the heap—and the sheep men are doing what the cattle men did, increasing their herds until now one finds a sheep ranch at almost every turn. A sheep will get fat where a cow will starve, and with wool protected as it is, and the increasing demand for mutton both here and abroad, it seems likely that the sheep herders are on the road to fortune.

"What caused the downfall of the cattle business? Well, one thing was the rapid settling up of the land, until it was almost impossible to find a good piece of grazing land accessible to water and timber. Most of the bottom lands are taken up and enclosed and thousands of acres of railroad land are bought up and a fence put around them. Every mining camp that is struck is sure death to the cattle that range near it, as all of the land that is of any value is barred up, and freighters' stock that hauls the supplies to camp eat up what little feed there is outside of the inclosures.

"Running cattle on a range, unless we have a very mild winter, is a thing of the past, and to feed hay at what it is worth, considering the low market value of cattle, is running into debt. Hay is worth from ten to twenty-five dollars in the stack, cattle are worth from nine to twelve dollars a head, and if the winter is not severe a ton of hay will winter a cow. You see it would pay better to sell the hay and save the money loss as well as the trouble of caring for the cattle.

"It does seem a sin," said Mr. Peabody, thoughtfully "to ship heifers and calves at just about what it costs for the freight, but we must do it. Cattle business in Montana is dead, but the sheep, they are good as gold dollars."—[New York Telegram.

Adopted by Indians.

For the first time in the history of North American Indians a white woman, Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse, has received the honor of national adoption by an Indian.

National instances of name-giving have been not infrequent among the Indians, the naming being accompanied with considerable ceremony and usually terminating with a feast. These ceremonies, however, are purely complimentary, evidencing a feeling of friendship for the person named and appreciation of some act of kindness.

The only instance of the affiliation of a white woman with the Indians is that of the historical celebrated white captive, May Jamison, who was taken captive by the Indians and adopted by a Seneca family. There is, however, no record of her having received a national adoption. Mrs. Converse has always defended the rights of the Indians of New York State, and she effectually aided the Indian delegation at Albany to oppose a bill before the Assembly which, if carried as a law, would have deprived them of their land.

The name given Mrs. Converse is "Ya-Ih-Wah-Noh," which signifies "embassador" or "the watcher." This is the clan name and the last bearer of it was the wife of the celebrated "Gy-Ant-Wa-Ka" or "cornplanter." It is a symbol of power, which commissions its bearer to carry messages of law, or as the Indians expresses it:

"You are the eagle which continually hovers above us to watch and warn us of danger."—[San Francisco Examiner.

The Pup Conciliated His Enemy.

I was recently in the stable-yard belonging to a friend of mine who had a considerable collection of dogs, among which are a fierce terrier and a spaniel of tender age. The terrier had ill-treated the pup on several occasions, so that the latter was very wary of him, and disposed to conciliate his enemy if possible. The terrier is fond of playing with small sticks, which the grooms are in the habit of throwing for him, and the pup seems to have understood this fancy, and to have acted upon it. I saw him take up a small stick in his mouth and advance toward the terrier with it, arching his neck and wagging his tail, as much as to say, "Please accept this slight token of my regard." The terrier did accept it; he rushed up to the little dog, took the stick and went on his way rejoicing, and the pup was justified in his wisdom.—[Boston Post.

The Buffalo Berry.

A professor of the North Dakota Experimental Station says that the most prolific, and, in his estimation, one of the most profitable fruits is the Buffalo berry. There flourish in the State three varieties of cherries, two of raspberries, one of currants, one of june-berry, one of strawberry and one of wild grape, the fruitage being the largest in North Dakota, where the plants are dwarfed.—[Boston Herald.

What Wild Animals Eat.

Very few of the thousands who have seen the animals in Central Park ever consider what it costs to feed them year in and year out, and the care and attention they require. Some require one kind of food and some another, and such is the peculiarity of many of the collection that their fodder has to be prepared in a manner resembling that which they were accustomed to in the part of the world whence they came. The polar bear and the black bear live together in a cage close to the rocks, and after devouring their allowance of meat they always cool their tongues on the cold stone. Without this cooling dessert the food would not comfort them at all.

The camels eat hay and some grain. The deer are satisfied with hay in the winter, but they want grass, roots and leaves in the summer. The birds are fed meal, barley and seeds of all kinds. The eagle enjoys horseflesh better than sow meat and varies the monotony at times by eating branches of trees and shrubs.

The lions, panthers, leopards, hyenas, tigers, prairie dogs and wildcats want meat, and to keep them quiet their stomachs are kept full all the time. A full-grown lion will eat on an average, 12 pounds of meat for a meal, a leopard and a panther about the same and a tiger about half this quantity. The monkeys eat almost anything, from soup to peanuts, but get their usual amount of bread, fruit and meat every day.

To feed this collection it takes over two bales of hay, a whole cow, two barrels of cornmeal and about four bushels of various kinds of feed every day, to say nothing of the odd things that strange animals require. The pelican, for instance, likes fish and birds, the seal likes grease and oily substance, while the hippopotamus must have, besides his hay, flesh of both land and water animals to satisfy his cravings. The park authorities buy all this beef alive and slaughter it themselves.

For carrion birds and some of the animals a carcass of horse is occasionally provided from the public pound. Every day the park wagon brings as great a weight of meat to the "zoo" as would last a hotel for a month, and by nightfall it has all disappeared.—[New York Recorder.

Bearded Women.

Bearded women have existed at all periods of the world's history. Herodotus has given us an account of Pedasnes "above Halicarnassus," among whom the chin of the Priestess of Minerva regularly budded with a large beard whenever any great public calamity impended A woman of Copenhagen, Bartel Garetji, had a beard reaching to her waist. Charles XII. of Sweden had a female grenadier in his army who possessed the beard as well as the courage of a man. Margaret, Duchess of Austria and Governess of the Netherlands, had a large, wiry, stiff beard on which she greatly prided herself. Of late years, Albert, Duke of Bavaria, reported having a young lady governess in his household who was the proud possessor of a very large black beard.—[St Louis Republic.

Sun Spots and Heart Failure.

New spots were visible yesterday in the sun's northern hemisphere. Another disturbance marked by two large spots is now seen in the sun's southern hemisphere. The two disturbances have progressed nearly together across the sun's disk, and both have been very active. The magnetic disturbance has been marked, and the sensitives have suffered seriously. Those inclined to irregular action of the heart have been great sufferers, and seven sudden deaths have occurred. Last week was singular for the number of such deaths. The sun is a near neighbor, only about one hundred of its own diameters away from us, and we feel the effects of its changing energy instantly.—[Rochester (N. Y., Democrat.

Disfigurement Among the Fijians.

The Fijians have many games of skill. They take great pride in the appearance of their hair and their coiffures are fearfully and wonderfully made. It is said of one chief that his headdress was five feet in circumference. One of their curious pagan customs was the cutting off of fingers of relatives of dead men as evidences of grief. Bishop Vidal relates that in one village he could see hardly a man with an undisfigured hand. All the horrible and almost forgotten customs of the Fijians are still very prevalent among the head hunters of the Solomon islands.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

A Little Change.

Tribute.

Since thou hast walked beside me these few years,
And my fate has intertwined with thine,
I know how love partakes of the divine:
In saying "Courage" when the soul knew fears,
In whispering "Comfort" when sad eyes hold tears,
In lifting one above that crooked line
To which hard care would fain a life confine,
E'en while the hopeless spirit perseveres.
Thou hast done this, and more, for me, strong heart,
And for the love-light shining in thine eyes,
I would not even for a kingdom part,
Well knowing I retain the greatest prize,
Since having thee and knowing what thou art
I surer am of God beyond the skies.

Modern Warfare on Fire.

The old theory in regard to fire is becoming obsolete. The idea was formerly that fire should be confined and smothered if possible for lack of air, but the modern idea is to give vent to the building that the flames and smoke and heat may escape, in order that the firemen may gain access to the building and concentrate their efforts to the extinguishing of the fire. In a building filled with flames and smoke it is almost impossible to locate the fire and the firemen are at a loss how to direct their efforts for its extinguishment. A building once cleared of the smoke it is not difficult to reach the fire. That this plan is successful is demonstrated by the fact that in large cities the loss by each fire is very much less than formerly.—[New York Dispatch.

WHY FARMERS SHOULD FAVOR PROTECTION.

Farming is that occupation into which men of all other vocations drift when misfortune overtakes their own industry. This fact should make the farmer the firm advocate of the Protective Tariff. He should desire the manufacturers of the country to be in the most flourishing condition, not only because they furnish at short range the very best customers for his cereals, meats, vegetables and dairy products, but for the additional reason that it is only by activity in the manufacturing industries that the farmer can be assured against increasing competition on his own ground from the dispossessed of all other trades,

It is the farmer that would be by far the greatest sufferer by any serious diminution of activity in the manufacturing industries, because, while the mechanic, displaced thro' stress of foreign competition, would have the alternation of taking to the land, and would avail himself of that alternative, the farmer, however much he might suffer from the competition thus forced upon him, would have no alternative whatever, The mechanic could earn a living by farming; the farmer could not earn one as a mechanic.

THAT THIRD PARTY.

The motly gathering at Cincinnati a few weeks ago was not a body of delegates representing State or even local organizations in any fixed proportion to members, but was in reality a fortuitous concourse of atoms precipitated from the formless void and chaos of all sorts of local constituencies, such as Farmers' Alliance, Knights of Labor, Anti-Monopolits, Single Tax men and the Lord knows what all. In the personnel of the controlling elements, if we may infer its general character from its more conspicuous leaders, it was a gathering of self-seeking and unprincipled agitators, political adventurers and soldiers of fortune, charlatans and cranks, the outcast and refuse of every political organization which has had power to dispense the political patronage or emoluments for which they hungered in vain. As to any consistent scheme of political action or intelligient political creed it has none, and can have none except to pander to the unrelated and, often, conflicting delusions and hobbies prevailing among its several constituents.

President Harrison's tour has effectually squelched the "grandfather's hat" business, by proving that Mr, Harrison has ability enough of his own without having to depend either upon his ancestors' or upon the statistics of the encyclopedia to make himself popular with the people. There are few men who could make as many or as able a set of speeches as those he delivered while on his memorable tour, and his ability is now conceded on all sides.

Those people who are trying to persuade themselves that Mr Blaine's brain power is weakening are themselves in greater danger of paresis then is the Secretary of State. By the way, it is about the same old crowd that tried so hard and so unsuccessfully to convince the country that Benjamin Harrison was a "dummy" President.

The farmer of the future will be a student. He will be a business man. He will have scientific knowledge. He will know why he must use certain kinds of fertilizers for certain grains. He will know why he uses certain food to produce fat and others to produce milk. Hence he must have education; at least sufficient mental training to be able to do these things.

The first six months of the new Republican tariff law have effected reciprocal trade arrangements with Spain, Brazil, Venzuela, Guatemala and San Domingo, And the following British colonies have asked for terms and are anxious to make them: Guiana, Trindad, Barbadoes, Newfoundland and Jamaica.

Previous to the passage of the McKinley law all glazed copying paper used in this country was imported. Now it is made here, and sold cheaper than the imported article,

The health of Secretary Blaine is very much better, He left New York on Monday for Bar Harbor, Maine, where he will remain a short time.

THE TRUE NATIONAL PARTY.

The Republican party is the only broad, liberal, national party in existence. It has distinct principles and it stands for everything that is American. The American doctrine of protection is its shibboleth, reciprocity its hand maiden, sound finances its firm base, and encouragement of shipping and extension of internal improvements its means to the great end which has been sought by our statesmen for a century, that this nation shall be independent of all the world, self supporting in all respects and dominant in political and commercial influence on the American continent,

Speed the harrow, the cultivator and the plow. The finely pulverized earth retains greatly more moisture than hard and unstirred ground and it holds more of the rain that falls. An American farmer's son who, after he has acquired a business and practical education, can be persuaded to follow the calling of his father and apply his knowledge to the cultivation of the soil, is doing more for the progression of American agriculture than any other force that can be named,

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, May 29, 1891.

The President will take part in the Memorial ceremonies of the G. A. R. at Philadelphia, in accordance with a promise made more than a year ago when circumstances compelled him to recall a half acceptance of an invitation to do so on last Memorial day. He will leave here in the morning and return the same evening.

After waiting until he was heartily tired to receive the answer of the British government to Secretary Blaine's proposition for a closed season in Behring Sea the President called the cabinet together and decided upon the policy of this government for the present season without regard to what may or may not be the wishes of her majesty's government, and sailing instructions were telegraphed to the revenue cutters Bear and Rush. Nothing official is known of those instructions, but there are reasons for believing that they do not differ materially from those of last season, which were in short to prevent illegal sealing as far as possible, but to make no seizures outside of the three mile limit. Secretary Blaine was in telegraphic communication with the President while the cabinet consultation was going on.

The immigration question is daily becoming more important to every citizen of the United States, and some good results are hoped from the investigation of the commission recently appointed by Secretary Foster. Ex-Representative Grosvenor of Ohio, who is chairman of that commission, says on the subject: "Just what is specifically expected of the commission I do not know, for we have not yet received our instructions, but I do know that there is pressing necessity for action on the part of the authorities. Never was any country the receptacle for such a stream of immigration as is pouring in on us now; all our previous records as a receptacle are being eclipsed. The increase, which has become so apparent of late, has its origin principally in Southern Italy and as most of the material now arriving is non-assimilative something must be done to decrease the volume The labor organizations complain that sufficient employment cannot be secured for the people already here, and there is a very general demand for more rigid immigration laws. The country is becoming too strongly tainted for foreign odors. Take Wisconsin as an instance—a State that is almost a European province. The people there demand the conduct of the public schools in a foreign tongue and gave other marked evidence of their alienism. In a little while they will insist on having the records of their legislature kept in their non-American language and on top of that will come an endeavor to have the courts operate in the language or languages native to other lands than ours. This is all wrong. We cannot afford to welcome those who will not be of us,"

EVERY RAILROAD MAN WILL WANT IT.—No railroad man in the world is more widely known or more popular than Chauncey M. Depew. Over the caption of "Our National Orator," a magnificent picture of him is presented on the first page of FRANK LESLIE'S ILLUSTRATED NEWSPAPER this week. Another striking feature is the prediction of Prof. Totten, of Yale University, that the Millenniem will come in 1899. The pictures include illustrations of the New York Central Railroad System, the Utica Masonic Home, a Nashville belle, sealing in Alaska, Italian fish-dealers in San Francisco, amateur photographs, etc. Get it from your newsdealer for ten cents.

A Question of Work and Wages

Buffalo Express.

Several thousand workmen will get American wages for making tin plate through the effects of the protective tariff who would get no wages at all for making tin plate without the tariff.

He is All Right.

Boston Traveller.

No President has ever stood better with the country as a whole in the third summer of his administration than President Harrison, and none in recent years has stood as well,

The Country Merchant's "McMinkey Prices."

Boomerangs fill the air these days returning as missiles of destruction to the "McKinley prices" demagogues who threw them at Protection in last fall's election. Especially destructive are said boomerangs to the guileless country merchants who walked into the trap set for them by the managers of the Free-Trade party and took up the cry of "McKinley prices," placing fictitious figures on their goods and preaching free trade from behind their counters; for the people are learning every day how unwarranted and unreal were these prices, and are naturally inclined to punish the dishonest retailers by refusing to trade with them. It is human nature, and we cannot blame the deceived customers,

A case in point is furnished by a correspondent of The League from Plankinton, South Dakota. "I have been satisfied for a long time," he writes, "that our merchants ask us the top price for third-rate goods. I inclose two samples of goods my wife bought in Plankinton a few days ago. The prices paid are marked on them. I should like to know what such goods are jobbed at in New York to the retail merchants. They were paid for when bought, so the prices are cash not credit prices. It seems to me that the calico is outrageously high"

The samples referred to were—one an "extra heavy indigo print" of an old brand, hardly sold in the New York market now, whose price could not be satisfactorily determined; and the other, a "double and twist denim" of lighter weight than the standard. These samples were sent to one of the largest and most reliable dealers in dry goods in New York, with a request that their jobbing price be given. The result will be best presented in tabular form:

(Standard brand, 25 to 26 inches wide,)
Indigo print	15	5½
(For somewhat better goods)
Double & twist denim	20	10 to 10½

This is the kind of evidence which is piling mountains high to overwhelm the "McKinley prices" deceivers, as soon as their victims get another chance to express themselves at the polls. The zealous "reform" merchant who acted as cat's paw to the free trade monkey is the first to suffer. The punishment of his principals, the campaign managers, is coming also, so surely as the light of morning succeeds the night.

The President's Sturdy Secretaries.

Press.

Events that have transpired within a twelve months have proven the mettle of at least four of President Harrison's Secretaries. In every instance sturdy Americanism has asserted itself. Secretary Proctor dealt with the Indian outbreak with a firm and conquering hand. Secretary Tracy sent the Charleston after the Itata with a promptness and purpose that made every loyal American's eyes sparkle and promise physical support to the government if need should be. The Italian affair brought out more of the same gritty spirit, and in the latest publications in respect to that affair Baron Fava is represented as cabling to Rudini that Secretary Blaine used this language to him:

> I do not recognize the right of any government to tell the United States what it should do. We have never received orders from any foreign power and we will not begin now.

This may not be the language of diplomacy as diplomacy is taught in the Old World—talking and writing to a great extent, but really saying nothing—but is a plain and clear statement of American sentiment, which every loyal citizen of the United States stands prepared to to indorse with the last drop of blood in his veins. By strange coincidence, on the same day that sees this correspondence made public, a letter of Secretary Foster is published, in which he lays down the law to importers in the same sturdy spirit. The importer had requested that he should be given a pass by which he could at any time see the "subordinate appraising officer." The Secretary, refusing the request, says that when an importer has, twice before his goods has reached the appraiser, to make oath to their value, no honest man requires thereafter any access to the appraisers. The Secretary's position is unimpeachable, and the President has reason to be proud of the nervy Secretaries who so well uphold his administration

Scrofula is an impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swelling, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, causes painful running sores on the arms, legs or feet, which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears or nose, often causing blindness and deafness. Take P P P (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium.) It has proved itself the most remarkable of all blood purifiers.

Dyspepsia, distress after eating, sour stomach, loss of appetite, a faint all-gone feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, heart burn, all relieved and cured by P P P (Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium). It will regulate the system, gives an appetite and makes you well.

The Work of Transcribing the Direct Tax List Now in Progress.

Raleigh News & Observer.

The list of taxes paid the United States by our citizens in 1865 and 1866 on land, having been received from Washington, Gov, Holt is now having them transcribed. When the transcripts are completed they will be sent to the Superior Court Clerks of the forty-one counties in which the taxes were paid. The names of the counties have been previously published, and will again be announced in due time, The Governor is making every effort to expedite the work, and will publish a circular of instructions to Superior Court Clerks, to be sent with the transcripts, giving the requirements of the acts of Congress and our General Assembly as to the payment of the money, which will contain full information to the tax-payers, or their legal representatives, as to filing claims and the collection thereof. The work is very important, as the lists have to be carefully reviewed. There are more than thirty thousand names on the lists,

LITERARY NOTICES.

The June ECLECTIC contains its usual quantum of attractive articles. "Talleyrand's Memoirs," which have excited great interest, are ably discussed by Lord Acton. Mr. F. W. H. Myers, well known as a student of psychology, is the contributor of a paper on "Science and a Future Life," and Mr. Edmund Gosse treats of the effects of democratic institutions on letters. Mr. P. G. Hamerton discusses the foundation of ethics in "A Basis of Positive Morality" with great acuteness and suggestive force. One of the trenchant papers is by Erastus Wiman, who treats of relations of Canada and the United States and the "Barbed Wire Fence" recently erected between them. Mrs Eliza Priestley has something of interest to say on "The Realm of the Microbe," one of the great questions of modern science. Apropos of Italy, Mathilde Blind gives her reminiscences of the patriot Mazzini, and Mrs Jessie White mario, daughter of the great singer, enters into the conditions of the recent imbroglio with the United States. Literary [illegible] will be keenly attracted [illegible] between Paul Bourget, Besant and [illegible] all eminent novel writers, on "The [illegible] of Fiction." There are many entertaining lighter articles, stories, travel, sketches, poems and popular-science papers.

New Orleans, besides being a centre of interest in connection with the Mafia tragedy which has lately caused an international diplomatic [illegible], is a city of checkered history and never-failing picturesqueness. Belle Hunt, the well-known and racy Southern writer, gives some vivid impressions of "New Orleans, Yesterday and to-day," in a richly illustrated article which leads Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for June. Sara Hart Woodworth, whose bird papers are a charming monthly feature of this magazine, writes about "Vermont Homes and Friends." Alphonse de Lamartine, the great poet and statesman whose centenary France has just celebrated, is the subject of a thoughtful and interesting article by Richard B. Kimball LL D, Antarctic Exploration and Nordenskiold's new expedition are discussed by John Laird Wilson. Other illustrated articles are "Fort Snelling," by Major Wm. H. Powell; "Over the Mont Cenis to Italy"; "Curio Shops and Curio Stalls in Japan," by Douglas Sladen; and "The New England, French and German Magazine Rifles," by a British Army Officer. There are short stories and sketches by Capt. Burt Arnold, David Ker, Fannie Aymar Mathews, Bernard Almonte and others, and a number of dainty poems

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues, a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

The North Carolinian.

Wednesday, June 3 1891.

☞ The crops have plenty of rain.

☞ Irish potatoes are being shipped.

☞ The people of Providence township will vote to-morrow upon the "fence" question.

☞ Seaton N. Jones, a promising and worthy young man of Tyrrell, died at Richmond, Va., on the 24th ult, aged 19 years, 6 months and 26 days.

☞ An act of Congress passed February 21, 1891 requires owners and masters of vessels to mark the name of the vessel on the bow and stern, and the draft of every registered vessel upon the stem and stern posts,

☞ Mrs. Frank Brothers died on Saturday at the residence of her daughter Mrs. Elliott Whitehurst in Providence. Her age was 70 years. She was interred on Monday and, the funeral sermon was, by request preached by Rev. Solomon Pool.

☞ At the meeting of Commissioners and Magistrates of this county on Monday R. B. Creecy jr, W. J. Griffin and N. A. Jones were elected Board of Education; the rate of taxes was made 91⅔ cents on $100 valuation, and $300 was appropriated for an exhibit at Raleigh and Chicago.

☞ The pulpit of the Methodist Church was again occupied by Rev. Dr. Solomon Pool on Sunday night. His theme was Belief and Unbelief, and the sermon was a powerful one. What a reasoner he is—clear in elucidation, strong in argument, profound in logic and eloquent in expression. He ranks among the ablest preachers in the South.

☞ The First National Bank of Elizabeth City was organized here last week with a capital stock of $50,000, At a meeting of the stockholders held on Thursday the following were elected. Directors: C. H. Robinson, G. M. Scott, J. B. Flora, G. H, Toadvine and E. F. Lamb of Elizabeth City, J. G. Wood of Edenton and M. H. White of Hertford. The Directors elected C. H. Robinson President, J. G. Wood Vice President and S. A. Graham, of Salisbury, Md, Cashier. It is proposed to put up a new building at once and expect to be ready for business about September.

☞ The new Baptist Church was dedicated on Sunday. There was a large congregation, every available space occupied and numbers were obliged to stand at the windows on the outside. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. W. E. Hatcher, of Richmond. He based his discourse on the 4th verse of the 27th chapter of Psalms, his theme being the Worship of God—the Christians' Desire for it and his Reason for it. The Doctor sustained his reputation as an able pulpit orator. His style is a model of clear, concise construction, reaching out by a succession of recitals a grand rhetorical blow, sharpened by logic and pointed with dignified pungency.

——By the way, our Baptist friends have just cause for feeling comfortable, to say the least, that they now after their strenuous and praiseworthy efforts, have one of the handsomest and most complete Church edifices in the State, In style and finish it is a model, and is a credit to them and an ornament to the town—one every right thinking citizen feels a pride in. The Carolinian most heartily congratulates them upon their grand achievement.

☞ With this issue the Carolinian enters upon its Twenty-third year. How time passes! What changes have taken place! How many who were present at its "bornin'," and who were active on life's busy state in this community, have gone to join the "great majority" Their places have been filled in society, in the places of business and on the subscription book of the Carolinian by their children. They feel, as their fathers did, that it is identified with and devoted to home interests, and they support it because they realize that it has been a reliable and active factor in developing the resources, forwarding the enterprises and promoting the industries that have made the town the beautiful and progressive city it has become As in the past, so in the future, it will continue to "fight on this line," aiding in every legitimate way possible in the upbuilding and advancing of all that pertains to the material welfare of the people of the town and the country. Politically in "warp and woof" Republican, it will still, in what it conceives to be the right way, elucidate and advocate the living principles of the National Republican party, believing that they are best conducive to the safety of the Republic and the prosperity of the American people. Ever tolerant to honest opponents, it concedes exactly what it demands—the right of opinion, and only contends for free and manly discussion. Let its friends—all who feel that it has rendered good service and is calculated to accomplish more, aid in its circulation. The beginning of a new volume is a good time.

☞ Farmers have commenced cutting oats.

☞ See change in schedule of Norfolk and Southern Railroad.

☞ Corn at Norfolk 69 cents; at Elizabeth City about 62 cents.

☞ Somebody has said that adversity is the plaster that draws the good out of mankind

——It makes the boys smile when they look over Fowler & Co's stock of Fancy shirts.

☞ To meet an unexpected demand for extra copies of this week's issue of the Carolinian we are obliged to print a number of half sheets.

——How can Fowler & Co, sell 26 line white pearl buttons at 10 cent per dozen.

☞ The farmer who refuses to believe that anything can be valuable because it is in conflict with old ideas and methods, is going to fall behind in the race for success.

——The Franklin is the best $2 50 shoe for men in the City. For sale by Moses Weisel.

☞ There are some things worth more than money in this world, and one of them is honesty and integrity of character. A man whose "word is as good as the gold" will find his character to be of most material aid to him in every walk of life.

——When you are at Fowler & Co's ask to see their $1,25 black henrietta.

——California canned goods in large variety at Robinson & Co.

☞ The Carolinian always willingly publishes notices of deaths without charge, but, as will be seen by the standing announcement in another column, obituaries must be paid for. The former are items of news; the latter does not interest the general reader.

——A comfortable back room, in second story of the Carolinian Building, for rent. Suitable for office or bed room.

☞ Among the saddest sights on earth are the cases of parents who have robbed themselves to make "ladies and gentlemen" of their children, and been afterwards driven from their homes, in their old age, out into the cold, friendless world by the very ones they favored Several instances recently coming to the notice of the Carolinian inspired this item

——All the latest spring dress goods may be procured at Fowler & Co's, including mohairs, cashmeres, henrettas, albatross and light weight flannels in all desirable shades.

☞ The editor of the Carolinian entered upon newspaper work thirty-four years ago. It is a short period of time to look back over, and yet greater progress has been made during that time by the people of the world than in all the previous history of the earth. And it has all been noted in the two papers he has conducted—the first for twelve years in another State, and the other here! What of the next thirty-four years? He is going to try to answer at least a part of the question in the Carolinian.

☞ The letters received during the past week, filled with commendations of the Carolinian and kindly congratulations to the editor upon his successful long service, coupled with the 'hope that the paper may continue and without change of management for another 22 years," have touched a tender chord and make us feel that we have not labored in vain. The work has been congenial to us and to know that it is appreciated is not only a satisfaction but an inspiration to keep on. devoting our best efforts in making the Carolinian a paper all may read with interest and profit.

——We are imitated by competitors in everything but prices. Robinson & Co.

——If you want a silk dress go to Fowler & Co's. They keep a full line of Surahs in dark and evening shades, Faille, Peau de Soie, Armure and the cheapest line of China Silks to be found in Elizabeth City.

☞ When you have seen persons sipping cooling drinks like lemonades, mint juleps, whiskey punches, sherry cobblers and so on, through long straws, it has probably not occurred to you that the making of these straws is quite an industry. They are cut in even lengths from rye stalks and put into boxes containing five thousand straws, which can be bought of dealers who make a specialty of barroom supplies. There is a factory in a Western State where over a hundred girls and boys are constantly employed the year round in cutting and packing these straws for market.

——Mr. Lund, a competent artist from Denmark, will have charge of my Gallery during my absence. Call and see the large Portrait given away.

LOCAL MENTION

There are some idlers in town who ought to be at work.—Register Culpepper has made handsome improvements about his residence. Contractor Shipp did the work and Carter wielded the paint brush.—Some people know more than they tell while a good many tell more than they know.—Mrs. Moses Weisel is visiting friends at Portsmouth and Norfolk.—Mr, L. H, Hornthal, of Plymouth, called on Thursday.—Joseph Whitehurst, a victim of hereditary consumption, died on the 26th ult.—The Carolinian acknowledges a pleasant visit from Rev. M. P. Hawkins who has taken charge of the A.M. E. Zion Church here. He is quite intelligent and possesses the ability to accomplish a good work for his people.—Mr, W. W. Graves, who has been spending several months at Philadelphia undergoing medical treatment, returned on Thursday. He is very much better. —Mrs, Mary Ann Stephens, of Aurora, is visiting her brother Mr. B. B. Tatem. She left here about 35 years ago. Her husband, now deceased, at one time did business here and served as Town Constable.—The following caution is intended for one who will understand it:

Be careful, man in what you do,
For there's a party watching you.

—It is sometimes the case that the weakest doubt shatters the strongest faith.—Mr. M, L. Elliott, of Edenton, dropped in and paid his respects on Friday.—The wife of Dempsey Griffin, one of our most respected and industrious colored citizens, died on the 27th ult.—Contractor D. S. Kramer is well on with the work on Mr. Thompson's new house on Burgess street. He is the pioneer here in original designs in architecture,—Our former townsman Mr. B. C, Brothers, now residing at Richmond, Va, has been appointed Stamping Clerk in the Postoffice at that city. He is held in high esteem there.—The minister who gives his hearers something to think about and remember is a teacher as well as a preacher.—Said a Democrat the other day, "I take the Carolinian because it gives all the news." It aims to do so.—Our bright young townsman Jarvis Seeley has been engaged to teach the public school at Kennekeet and has left to enter upon duty.—The steam tug Edith, Capt. Lyons, for some months in service at Washington, is back to this port again. She is said to be the fastest tug in our waters.—The question comes up,

With sugar, and berries, and ice
All down to the poor man's price,

what excuse is there now for his not enjoying 'em?—We had the pleasure on Saturday of making the acquaintance of Ensign P. W. Hourigan, U. S N, Ass'stant Light House Inspector for this District, who gave us a call, He is a genial and cultured gentleman and impressed us most favorably.—Our Young Man says that he imagines it is easier to be a clergyman than a doctor because it is certainly easier to preach than to practice.—The versifier says graphically:

"He dropped his flannels, nor deemed it silly,
When the air no more felt raw and chilly.
But he cried as the pains through his joints darted,
The fool and his flannels are soon parted."

—It was in a certain parlor at the West End, and the hand on the clock pointed to 11:45 p. m. Said he, "Time waits on no man." "I don't blame it," she replied. "It would lose lots of sleep if it waited on some persons I know." Then he took the hint.—Good nature is sometimes called the "allspice of life."—The Commencement Exercises of the Elizabeth City Academy will be held on the 17th inst.—The new Baptist Church from floor to steeple is universally admired. Thos. A. Commander was the contractor and builder.—Our people are beginning to talk about Nag's Head,—Because of the Baptist dedication the Pastor of the Methodist Church kindly omitted service in the morning. Such Christian courtesy should be appreciated.—The new team and wagon of the Crystal Ice Company are beauties.—A beautiful "Memorial" window, in memory of Mrs, Margaret Hollowell, who bequeathed a special legacy to the Baptist Church, has been put in place in the new edifice.—The new Fish Market building, at the foot of Mathews street, is well under way.—Our Baptist brethren have had the luck for a "wet" time. At the corner-stone laying there was quite a shower during the ceremonies, and again on Sunday there was a "down pour" before the dedicatory services were over. But neither at all quenched their ardor and zeal—How much we all miss the Electric Lights. May they be put in operation again as soon as possible—The "Violet," U. S. Buoy tender, has placed new beacons in the river here.—Rev. Dr. Hatcher and wife were the guests of Mr. Thos. R Bland. They left on Monday for Edenton where the Doctor lectured at night.—At the regular annual election of Eureka Masonic Lodge held on Monday night, Dr. W. W. Griggs was elected W. M.; J. Y. Old S. W.; T. R, Mann J. W.; D. B. Bradford Secretary, and D. S. Kramer Treasurer. —The merchants now close business at 7 o'clock P. M.—The Crystal Ice Company made a general free distribution of "chunks of frozen coldness" to the families in town on Monday with their compliments.—The total amount raised at the Baptist Church on Sunday was $740. It will pay for the seats, furniture, carpet, etc, and will be thus applied,—Col. Guirkin has returned and reports the consultation with Dr. Chisholm to have been satisfactory, —The ladies of the Methodist Church will hold a lawn party in the Court House yard on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Church.—There was a meeting of the Town Commissioners yesterday to further consider the Water Works question. A party from Norfolk has been invited to come out and make an estimate of cost, etc.—Rev. Solomon Pool left on the "Neuse" last night en route for his home at Charlotte.—J. T. Parker, of Baltimore, dropped in yesterday and gave us a "Prohibition" chat.—Several young gentlemen chartered the "Lizzie Burrus" and, with a number of invited young lady friends, took a sail down the river last night—The St. Catharines' Guild, of Christ Church, will have an ice cream festival at the Court House this evening from 6:30 to 10 o'clock.

His Excellency the Governor has offered a reward of $200 for the capture of John R. Moore, of Pitt county. Moore is charged with shooting his own brother Wm. Moore from ambush about a month ago and inflicting what is thought to be a fatal wound, though he is still alive.

The Governor issued his warrant for the execution of H. W. Bradham who was convicted of murdering the Itrlian Mocca with a coupling pin in Charlotte. The execution is set for July 2nd next.

Health is wealth. Take Simmons Liver Regulator for all sickness caused by diseased liver.

A terrific cyclone passed through Johnston county doing vast damage to crops and property. One plantation in Cleveland township was completely devastated, barns being swept away and several mules and cows being killed.

Delays are dangerous. Take Simmons Liver Regulator in time for dyspepsia, biliousness and all diseases of the liver.

On the night of the 28th ult as W. G. Stokes, the postmaster at Grimesland was making his way home from his place of business, which is but a short distance, a man fired a load of buckshot at him from a fence corner and then took to his heels. Three of the shot passed across his breast and through his shirt, but fortunately he escaped unhurt, but very much frightened.

Specimen Cases.

S, H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis, was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill, had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by A. Wadsworth, Druggist.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

AN old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipe, in German, French or English with full directions for preparing and using. I PAY

For This Space,

Because I have something to say that is of interest to practical people.

Because I want to reach the knowing and progressive people of this vicinity,

Because people of this class are the people whose trade I desire to win.

The Best People

Are the thinking people. They know what they want. They are not to be won by mere irresponsible cackle. Fair dealing wins them. Once won they are staunch customers, not to be budged by bluster.

All Thinking People

Are invited to make an examination of our goods, in order to be convinced of the fact that our low prices are consistent with a

High Grade of Quality.

Young Swedes Deserting Their Country for America.

The Government of Sweden has ordered an inquiry as to the condition of parts of that country said to be almost denuded of young men by emigration to America. Young women for domestic service are also becoming scarce, and the wages demanded by servants have risen to double the figure of a few years ago.

The supply of conscripts is running short, and the burden of military service falls more heavily on those that remain. As the aged and crippled are generally left behind, while the young and strong of both sexes emigrate, the country in many places looks as if the effective population had been carried off by war, leaving only the physically worthless.

Another fact that causes regret and anxiety to the Swedish Government is the large proportion of the pure, light-haired Swedes among the emigrants, this being the class akin to North Germans and English that has heretofore upheld the country both in war and in peace. Their places in Northern Sweden are largely taken by immigrant Finns and Lapps, who are akin to the Mongols. In Vermland, called the cradle of the Swedes, the people are leaving in throngs, and nearly every young person wants to emigrate.

The Murderer Was Drowned.

A horrible murder, shortly afterward followed by the accidental death of the murderer, occurred in the lower part of Denver, Col., on a recent evening. Pepino Feliergo, who owns a truck patch in the Platte bottoms, became irritated at a neighbor's cow which had strayed on to his land, and when the little son of the owner of the animal was sent to drive it out he seized the child and began to chastise him.

Coney Glutz, a young man about eighteen years old, was passing at the time and interfered, requesting Feliergo to let the child alone. This further incensed him, and drawing a revolver he shot Glutz, killing him almost instantly.

The neighbors, becoming excited over the murder, started out to the number of several hundred and surrounded Feliergo's house for the purpose of taking him out and lynching him. He escaped by a rear door and started for the Twenty-third street viaduct, pursued by a mob.

When half way across the viaduct he was confronted by a crowd coming toward him. Seeing no other means of escape, he leaped into the Platte River and attempted to swim ashore. The current was too strong, however, and he was carried down and drowned before the eyes of his pursuers.

Ten Dead From an Oil Fire.

It is only now possible to state the terrible results of the explosion of petroleum at Condekerque, France.

The ignited oil was thrown in every direction with great force, large sheets falling upon the adjoining houses and setting them on fire. Seven of these burned so fiercely that no efforts could be made to save them.

It is now found that ten of the inmates are missing. They are supposed to be dead, while between twenty and thirty are so seriously injured that the majority of them are not expected to live.

Although the firemen and relays of volunteers have worked incessantly throughout the night the conflagration was not subdued until next day.

It burned over 5000 yards, and herculean efforts were made to confine it, since in the immediate vicinity were eight other petroleum reservoirs, besides several storehouses containing hundreds of barrels of naphtha.

The damage done amounts to $75,000. A man who was escaping from a burning building was caught by the flames and cremated before the eyes of the spectators, who were powerless to save him.

To Breed Reindeer.

The Government has asked Captain C. A. Curtis, of Madison, Wis., a retired army officer, to go to Lawrence Island in the Bering Sea to take charge of a station about to be established there, for a year. The Interior Department desires to have a station on this island and begin the breeding of reindeer there for the Innuits and Esquimaux to use instead of dogs.

It is the purpose of the Government to im reindeer from Siberia to the island, and a number of Siberians with them to teach the natives how to raise and care for the animals. A reindeer park will be established, and as soon as the animals are obtained in sufficient numbers some of them will be taken to Alaska and distributed among the people of that country. And thus the dogs, now used for sledging in the United States arctic possessions, will be displaced by deer, which will form nutritious food in case of emergency, whereas dogs do not furnish the most palatable meat.

Lynched Before His Mother.

A mob lynched Green Wells, colored, at Columbia, Tenn., for the murder on May 22, of John Fly, who lived two miles from Columbia.

Wells, who was taken into custody at Iron City, was pursued by a mob, who overtook the Sheriff and his prisoner and forced them to go to Columbia. The mob gathered on the public square and around the jail, and although some of the best citizens tried to induce them to await the action of the Grand Jury, they determined to hang him.

The mob battered down the door and took Wells from his cell. The prisoner was then taken from the jail. He was dragged to a bridge and hurled over, falling a distance of eighteen or twenty feet before the long rope about his neck became taut. His neck was broken. The lynching was witnessed by Wells's mother.

Horrible Deed of a Mother.

The charred remains of Mrs. W. A. Uptegroff, aged twenty-five, and her three children—all girls, aged from fifteen months to five years—were found in the ruins of a small house burned early on a recent morning at Topeka, Kan. The surrounding circumstances point to a carefully planned triple murder and suicide. The family moved into the house about a month ago and the parents had become despondent on account of their inability to procure work. The father was absent seeking employment when the tragedy occurred, and when informed of it became dazed with grief and unable to talk coherently.

Killed in a Street Row.

While two parties were returning from a dance at Feldenick, Prussia, the men of the respective groups became involved in a quarrel in regard to the ladies under their escort. A combat followed, in which knives were used as weapons, and the result was the fatal wounding of three men, and the serious injury of a woman.

Three Men Drowned.

Word has just been received of a sad drowning accident in Rideau Lake, Canada, on a recent night. While canoeing on the lake the boat upset, and William Stitt, William Gilmour and Charles Lockwood sank before they could be rescued.

Drowned Her Child and Herself.

About 1 o'clock on a recent afternoon Mrs. Philip Lice drowned her baby and herself at Galeton, Penn. The bodies were found about 2 P. M. The mother had the child in her arms when found.

CALL RE-ELECTED.

A Senator Chosen in Florida After a Long Contest.

Wilkinson Call was chosen his own successor as United States Senator from Florida. King Caucus died the night before after two ballots, by a vote of 49 to 47, to adjourn sine die. Ninety ballots had been taken in a vain attempt to defeat his re-election.

At 12 o'clock the members of the Senate who had remained in their seats all the morning entered the House of Representatives, and then the two houses were called to order in joint session.

The Clerk began calling the roll and not one of the anti-Call men present answered to his name. The Clerk reported the total number present to be fifty-four and President Browne announced that a quorum of the bers elected to both branches of the ture was present. An appeal from ion resulted in the sustaining of the e for Senator was then taken and l as follows: For Call, fifty-one; one. The President of the joint en declared that Wilkinson Call duly elected United States Senator.

The announcement was greeted with loud cheers. A committee was appointed to wait upon Senator Call, who appeared in the hall and made an eloquent speech.

THE WATER PALACE.

One of the Most Brilliant Features of the World's Fair.

The "gem" edifice of the World's Fair will be the Water Palace. So said a prominent architect, and, undoubtedly his opinion will be that of all the world when it views the harmonious proportion, unique use of falling water and the marvellous electric transformations concentrated in this building.

The "Palace," the first impression of which will be that of a superb illuminated fountain, is to be situated on the larger island in the northern lake of Jackson Park, facing, and, as it were, answering to the great administration dome. It will be bounded by the Illinois State building, the fisheries, the buildings of foreign nations, and probably the temporary art palace.

There are four entrances, reached by small bridges or causeways. The interior, which is a lofty circular hall of 250 feet diameter, gives the impression of a transparent building; or rather, the building as a whole presents this appearance, the entire construction being concealed by glass. The feature of the interior that first attracts and delights the eye is the central column. A magnificent pillar of glowing color thirty feet in diameter at the base, bearing upon its summit the ships of Columbus. Independent of the rest of the building, this would be a worthy memorial of the great discoverer. These ships by the way are fac-similes of the ancient Spanish fleet La Pinta, La Nina and Santa Maria, and will accommodate between four and five hundred persons. But the center column is intended for a greater service than mere eye pleasure, its softly colored glass concealing the stand pipe that carries the water to the dome and also the four elevators for conveying visitors to the decks of the ships, a distance of over 250 feet. Arriving at the top of the dome on the deck of the vessels, the eye is delighted by a surface of rippling waters upon which the ships appear to be floating. Further out the vision still meets moving waves, while on the verge of an apparently receding horizon are seen the grounds and the hurrying crowds in gala dress that seem like mere specks of bright and dark color. This illusion of intensified distance is due to the rotundity of surface given by the circular construction of the dome and is somewhat heightened by the constantly shifting water. As a variety in entertainment an elevator can be taken that carries one to an interior gallery where are small rooms for refreshments, etc. There are eight of these elevators, two starting from each entrance door besides the four in the centre. Connecting with the interior gallery is an exterior one, to be known as "The Promenade." "The Promenade" encircles the building, is twenty feet wide, about 125 feet above the ground level, and will be one of the favorite spots for resting and quiet enjoyment. Here at a convenient height is afforded a complete view of the grounds and the sultriest day one will be kept cool by the sight and sound of descending water sheets that discharge behind plate glass protection into the columns.

THE WATER PALACE.

The dome is supported by Corinthian columns through which, as before said, the descending waters discharge. These pillars are square lattice girder, of steel. The galleries form circular trusses, strengthening and taking the thrust of the dome, thus counteracting deformation by wind pressure. The dome is covered by continually moving waters and in the day time will look like a glittering crystal. In the evening the building will afford unrivalled opportunity for spectacular, electrical effects, of which it is unnecessary to say the most will be made.

As an engineering feat this structure will attract the attention of mechanical minds of every nation while its beauty will captivate the simplest artistic sense.

SOUTHERN PROGRESS.

A Great Exposition to be Held in Raleigh, N. C., Next Fall.

The fourteen Southern States, and New Mexico and Arizona, have joined in establishing in the city of Raleigh, N. C., a permanent exhibit of their products and resources. This effort is made under the direction of the several State governments.

From the 1st of October to the 1st of December, 1891, a great Southern Exposition will be held. Northern manufacturers and dealers in machinery and manufactured goods are invited to join with the South and show at the Southern Exposition the latest labor-saving devices of every description. A unique feature will be an exhibit showing the advancement of the negroes, managed entirely by themselves. Each Southern State will have its special negro Commissioner, who will preside over and have the control of the exhibit from his State.

Hon. John T. Patrick, the leader in industrial progress in the Southern States, has been made Secretary, and has already established his headquarters at Raleigh. His efforts for the past ten years, to bring about friendly business relations between the North and South, especially fit him for this work. He was unanimously elected to the position by a convention of more than 600 delegates appointed by the Governors of the several Southern States, and Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of all large Southern cities. Mr. Patrick is not only Secretary of the Southern Exposition, but is Commissioner of the Department of Information of the Southern Inter-States Immigration Bureau. It is his special duty to furnish information about any Southern subject. This is done through a system of co-operation that has been inaugurated between Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce and Immigration Bureaus all over the Southern States. Any one desiring information should write to Mr. Patrick, at Raleigh, N. C. Mr. Patrick has the letter printed and sent to the various cities and towns, and the inquirer receives directly and authentically the information desired. This is all done without any cost to the inquirer, as the Southern States have joined in sustaining this organization.

RIOTING IN PARIS.

Police Overpowered by the Striking Stage-drivers.

The strike of stage-drivers throughout Paris, France, continued for two days, and caused great excitement in that city. The company, assisted by the police, made an endeavor to run several stages.

No sooner were the stages well out of the depots than they were greeted with volley upon volley of stones, accompanied with a storm of hooting and jeering. Though the stages were escorted by policemen, the strikers watched their opportunity, and, at a signal agreed upon, charged furiously upon the stages, swept away the police lines, dragged the new drivers from their boxes, pounded them vigorously, cut the traces of the horses, and in several cases overturned and seriously damaged the stages themselves.

Two strikers were crushed and fatally injured while attempting to stop an omnibus.

Squads of police attempted by repeated charges upon the strikers and their supporters to protect the stages issuing from the depot on the Boulevard Bourdon, but the crowds responded by attacking and overpowering the police. The strikers then pulled the new drivers from the stages, severely maltreated them, and compelled the stages to return to the depot.

Minister Constans gave audience to delegates of the strikers and the company's directors. As a result of the audience and the mediation of the municipal authorities, the directors of company met the union leaders and drafted an agreement virtually ending the strike, on the men's terms. The company recognizes the union, reinstates dismissed union men, and adopts the twelve-hour system.

DEATH OF A PEER.

Lord Romilly and Two of His Household Are Smothered.

At midnight Lord Romilly upset a paraffine lamp in the drawing room of his London (England) residence. He was alone at the time and vainly attempted to extinguish the fire unassisted. Shortly afterward the butler smelled smoke, and on making a hurried investigation found Lord Romilly lying senseless in the burning drawing room, the nobleman having been overcome by smoke and the fumes arising from the burning contents of the lamp. Lord Romilly was subsequently removed to St. George's Hospital, where all attempts to revive him failed.

Several fire engines, in response to alarms sent out, hastened to Lord Romilly's house, about which an excited crowd had gathered. The firemen on entering found Blanche Griffin, a housemaid, and Emma Lovell, the cook, in the same state of insensibility in which their employer was discovered. They were also removed to the hospital, where it was found that both were already dead.

ARSENIC BY MISTAKE.

Sudden Death of Congressman L. C. Houk, of Tennessee.

L. C. Houk, the Republican Representative in Congress from Knoxville, Tenn., for the last eleven years, died on a recent morning shortly after 6 o'clock. The day before he drank a glass of arsenic which he thought was ice-water in Depew's drug store in North Knoxville. Antidotes were promptly administered, and by 10 o'clock that night he was so well that nothing was said about the circumstances except to a few friends. He slept through the night and died in the morning suddenly. He had heart disease, and the poison and excitement following the incident affected that organ and was the cause of death.

His death was deplored by all, and the courts and a number of business offices and houses were closed as a token of respect for the dead. He leaves a wife and seven children, with thousands of friends throughout the South.

Leonidas C. Houk was born on June 8, 1836, in Sevier County, Tenn.

ELEVEN MINERS KILLED.

Ten of Them Were Colored Convicts —A Gas Chamber Unsealed.

At the Pratt mines, Birmingham, Ala., an explosion of gas in a shaft where convicts are worked killed ten colored convicts and one free miner named Tom Moore.

It is believed that the men had in some way knocked off a plank from a door which stood across an old chamber, and on which the word "Gas" was written. The gas rushed out and caught fire from the lamp.

Officers of the company went to the rescue and worked to save the men, but were themselves suffocated and narrowly escaped, being dragged out unconscious.

The bodies of the dead have all been recovered. The mines are not considered in danger from gas as a rule, and this is the first accident of the sort for a long time. Two life convicts worked faithfully with the rescuing party.

FOOLED 10,000 PEOPLE.

Locked in the Omaha Fair Grounds While the Swindlers Fled.

Ten thousand people paid fifty cents each to witness the flight of the Chicago air-ship at the Fair Grounds at Omaha, Neb. After the crowd had got inside "Professors" Bush and Dodd, of Chicago, securely locked the gates so that their victims could not get out, raked the pile of money into a bag, and jumping on horses already arranged for their escape were out of the city before their flight was discovered. When the crowd discovered the deceit the case supposed to contain the airship was torn to pieces and only old papers were discovered.

COMMANDER MCCALLA, of the navy, who was convicted of tyrannical and cruel conduct toward his men, and suspended for three years, has seen two other commanders promoted over him in the last year, and it is said that he is heartbroken. His case may teach others a good lesson.

A DONATION of $200,000 has been made by William M. Rice of New York, for the erection at Houston, Texas, of an institute to be known as the William M. Rice Institute. It is to be a copy of the Cooper Institute of New York and will be devoted to the advancement of science, literature and art. Mr. Rice was formerly a resident of that city.

Makes the Weak Strong

The way in which Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up people in run down or weakened state of health conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

GLASSCOCK is New York's best sacrifice hitter.

A PITCHER without speed is of no use this season.

ALREADY the usual summer hunt for pitchers is in full cry.

THE Association team is more popular in Cincinnati than the League.

THE Louisville and St. Louis teams are said to be luckiest in the profession.

ALLEN, the Philadelphia League short stop, ranks with Glasscock and Long.

GOVERNOR HILL, of New York, occasionally attends the games of the Albany Club.

JOE GERHARDT, released by Louisville, has signed with the Albany (N. Y.) Club.

IT looks as though Bassett would be a fixture at New York's third base instead of Denny.

PITTSBURG carries seventeen men—including four catchers and six pitchers—on the pay-roll.

PITTSBURG has taken a big jump upward of late, and is now regarded as an important factor in the League race.

MCKEAN, of Cleveland, can untie his shoestrings, when he wants to rest a pitcher, with as much skill as any man in the business.

SEERY, Andrews, Johnston, Whitney, Crane, Mains and Kelly, of the Cincinnati Association team, are old League players.

THE heavy batting still continues in major league circles, but as the weather becomes hotter the pitchers will gradually have their inning.

JAKE VIRTUE, Cleveland's crack first-baseman, refused an offer from a League club two years ago, believing that he was not fast enough for League company.

DURING a game of baseball at Nashville, Ohio, Philip Harden, aged eighteen, completed a run and, seating himself on a stone, said: "Tally one for me," and fell dead.

STEALING second is almost an impossibility with Galvin, of Pittsburg, in the box. He watches first as no other pitcher in the country watches it, and it is suicidal to take a big lead off the bag.

WOODCOCK, Brown University's famous pitcher, has signed with Boston. He will play with the college nine up to commencement, and after that date will begin his services with the Boston club.

JAMES G. FOGARTY, the well-known baseball player died at Philadelphia, Penn., a few days ago of consumption. He contracted a heavy cold on his return from California in February last, and had since that time been confined to his bed. He was twenty-six years of age and his home was in Los Angeles, Cal.

CHILOCCO Indian school south of Arkansas City, Kan., has a baseball nine composed of Indian pupils. They have beaten all the amateur ball clubs in this vicinity. They play ball like machinery, never kick, talk or coach. Their idea is to catch the ball, bat it and make runs. They display no enthusiasm, and it is impossible to rattle them.

ONE of the most remarkable baseball games on record was played recently at Tacoma, Washington, between the Seattle and Tacoma clubs of the Pacific Northwest League. It took twenty-two innings to decide the game, which was won by Tacoma by a score of six to five. In the ninth inning the score stood three to three; in the fifteenth each club scored one run, and each again scored one run in the eighteenth, making the score five to five. No more runs were made until the twenty-second, when Tacoma scored one run, winning the game.

"August Flower"

Perhaps you do not believe these statements concerning Green's August Flower. Well, we can't make you. We can't force conviction into your head or medicine into your throat. We don't want to. The money is yours, and the misery is yours; and until you are willing to believe, and spend the one for the relief of the other, they will stay so. John H. Foster, 1122 Brown Street, Philadelphia, says: "My wife is a little Scotch woman, thirty years of age and of a naturally delicate disposition. For five or six years past she has been suffering from Dyspepsia. She became so bad at last that she could not sit down to a meal but she had to vomit it as soon as she had eaten it. Two bottles of your August Flower have cured her, after many doctors failed. She can now eat anything, and enjoy it; and as for Dyspepsia, she does not know that she ever had it."

Ear Trumpets as Cupid's Arrows.

With the marriage at Steelville, Mo., of William J. D. Kelly to Miss Anna McDonald, of Oakville, Canada, is connected quite a romance. The groom is a well known young man, living on a farm with his widowed mother, well-to-do, though deaf and dumb. A year or two ago he noticed in the papers a recommendation of some kind of ear trumpet by the above named young lady who is also a deaf mute. A correspondence ensued, the tender chords of sympathy and emotion were aroused and an engagement followed. The heroic young bride left her far off Canadian home to meet her distant affianced. For six days and alone she traveled, but came safely through. This was three weeks before the marriage, and the intervening time was spent in forming each other's acquaintance at the groom's home, with the result that the nuptials were celebrated amidst the congratulations of a host of friends.—St. Louis Republic.

Deafness Can't be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Treasury of General Information.

A Condensed Encyclopedia of Universal Knowledge.

Being a handy Reference upon nearly every subject that can be thought of. Containing in a condensed form what can otherwise be learned only from a great many large Encyclopedias, Dictionaries, &c.

WITH A COMPLETE ANALYTICAL INDEX FOR READY REFERENCE.

EDITED BY THE ABLEST TALENT THE WORLD AFFORDS.

It tells about nearly every subject under the sun; and, instead of long and diffuse chapters it gives what nearly every one wants to know, in a very few lines. In reading nearly any book or paper there are frequent references to a thousand and one matters which the general reader would like to understand a little more about, and which, unless he has a large library of costly books to refer to, he can learn nothing; but here, with this one volume he can turn at once to the INDEX and find the page, and the whole thing is clearly and concisely explained. A very important feature of the book is, that in addition to every subject being carefully indexed by itself, so that any one word can be turned to at once, the reader will find everything relating to one general subject is collected together under one General Classification. For example: Mythology is treated of in one place, and everything about it is under one chapter; while, in the Complete Index each individual character and reference is alphabetically found, thus enabling the reader to study the whole of Mythology, or to refer, at a glance, to any one mythological character, and learn all about it in one short paragraph. The same in History, Philosophy, Geography, Art, Astronomy, etc. Merely to give an idea of the more important matters we enumerate the following: Astronomy, Geography, Geology, Chemistry, Mythology, Vegetable Creation, Animal Creation, Language, Medieval Learning, European Literature, English Literature, Fine Arts, Ancient History, Medieval History, British History, History of all Nations. No one need ever be ignorant of any subject with this work at hand. Every person should possess a copy. As a rule encyclopedias and works of real valuable information have been the books most sought after, but, heretofore, they have been in too many volumes and too costly for the general reader; but here a book is published in ONE VOLUME, at a low price, within the means of all. SEE how thoroughly General Knowledge is covered: There are 238 paragraphs in Astronomy and Geography, 203 on Geology, Mineralogy, Chemistry, Heat and Light, Electricity, Magnetism, Matter and Motion; 165 on Vegetable and Animal Creation; 166 on Ethnology, Chronology, Language, Literature, etc.; 96 on Greek and Roman Philosophy, 57 on Medieval Learning and Arts, 119 on Literature, France, Germany, Spain, Italy; 384 paragraphs in English Literature and the Fine Arts, 90 on British Constitution and Law, 131 on Miscellaneous Subjects and Historical Explanations, 135 on Ancient History, Hebrews, Babylonians, Assyrians, etc.; 98 on Mythology and Grecian History, 48 on Ancient Greece—Credible History; 286 on Ancient Roman and Medieval History; 851 on History of All Nations. Here are some abbreviated extracts: Light travels 192,000 miles in a second—See page 50. William Shakespeare, the greatest of all poets and dramatists was born 1564; died 1616—page 143. The famous Spanish Armada was destroyed in 1588—page 330. Printing invented 1437 by John Guttenberg—page 305. The Pyramids are monumental tombs of the Pharaohs, and are from 3,000 to 4,000 years old—page 297. Sound travels at the rate of 1,125 feet per second—page 49. Æsop, the famous writer of fables, was a Greek slave, who lived in the 6th century, B. C.—page 103. Ambrosia, in Mythology, was the food of the Gods—page 248. The great earthquake which occurred at Lisbon, in 1755, destroyed 50,000 inhabitants in eight minutes—page 426. Solomon's Temple was destroyed in the year 70—page 230. Eye of a butterfly contains 17,000 lenses, each lens possessing the power of an eye—page 77. Earth's surface is 200,000,000 square miles—page 23. The Golden Age, Iron Age, Bronze Age, etc., were fanciful notions of the Greeks—page 242. Napoleon, born in Corsica, 1769; died 1821—411. Amazon River, South America; longest in the world; 4,000 miles; navigable 3,360—25. "Order of the Garter" was a knighthood, instituted 1344—122. Amazons were a nation of female warriors—243. Crœsus, a king in Asia, renowned for his great wealth—243. Philosopher's stone originated in Egypt, and supposed to convert baser metals into gold—117. George Washington, first President of the U. S.; born in Virginia, 1732; died, 1799—428. Bastile was a prison in Paris; destroyed 1789—407. Mariner's compass is a magnetized needle, invented 1260, by Marco Polo, of Venice—330. The atmosphere reaches to the height of 45 miles—47. The "Gordian Knot" was a knot tied by King Gordius of Phrygia in the harness of his oxen—225.

It is impossible for any intelligent person to open the book, on any page, without becoming interested.
